About Kevin Hyett

Kevin Hyett was one of the founder members of Greater Manchester Coalition of Disabled People (GMCDP). He was passionately committed to the disabled people’s movement and also played key roles in the British Council of Disabled People and setting up Breakthrough UK.

After being turned down for a chemistry degree on the grounds that it would be too dangerous for him, Kevin undertook and completed a degree course in computer programming. This led to him embarking on a lengthy career with the petrochemical company, Shell UK.

In the beginning stages of Greater Manchester Coalition of Disabled People, Kevin’s IT knowledge and organisational skills were vital in setting up the systems to make the organisation run smoothly. Kevin played a vital role in establishing GMCDP’s legal status. Kevin was adamant that GMCDP should never become a charity as he felt that it was completely at odds with what the organisation stood for. Kevin was very passionate about young disabled people becoming involved in all aspects of the work GMCDP does.

Notes

The date format used in document titles is year-month-day, which has the advantage of sorting the documents into their original date order on a computer.

The documents can be found online by searching for – Kevin Hyett Archive wordpress – or going to:

BCODP – became the British Council of Disabled People, and previously the initials stood for the British Council of Organisations of Disabled People. It is now UKDPC, the United Kingdom Disabled People’s Council.
